

Your Leadership Pathway

In the water sector

SKILL BUILDING ✓

Building the skills you need to secure the job you want doesn't have to be difficult. It can be as simple as using the resources available to you through affiliation with professional water organizations like WEF.

WEF members have unlimited access to a suite of online education resources designed to help water professionals acquire and hone technical skills. Resources such as monthly learning webcasts, the Online Wastewater Library (OWWL), and one of the industry's premier publications, WE&T, are tools that promote knowledge sharing and skills enhancement across many facets of the water sector.

CAREER SEARCH ✓

Once you've identified your pathway and acquired the skills needed to move to the next level, where can you go to find the job you want?

WEF's Job Bank features listings for career opportunities in water, wastewater, and environmental fields. It's a complimentary resource open to the water community at large.

To learn more about WEF's other career resources and the benefits of membership, visit us online at www.wef.org

Ready to move the career needle?

The Water Environment Federation (WEF) fulfills its mission of protecting public health and the environment by supporting thousands of water professionals like you, who are actively contributing to the future of water. Through technical education, training and networking opportunities, WEF works to open the doors of advancement for water professionals across the globe.

As you begin to explore your individual approach to career advancement, take some time to map out your goals and priorities. We've compiled a few questions to help you get started.

- Are there certain job actions or responsibilities you enjoy?
- Does your current employer offer advancement opportunities related to those responsibilities?
- What new skills would you need to qualify for those opportunities?
- Where can you find training?